

Cleanevent Achieves Certification in all 3 Key Standards

The Cleanevent Group is a leader in the provision of property services, waste and environmental management and consultancy services, a truly global organisation with operational facilities in Australia, the United Kingdom, the United States of America and the United Arab Emirates.

Cleanevent International has been the preferred supplier to the major events industry around the world since 1987, with events such as formula 1 Grand Prix's, World Cup Cricket, Air Shows, Steeple Chases, Horse Racing, just a few examples of events being planned and delivered successfully.

Cleanevent International has worked directly with the Olympic movement since Atlanta in 1996. We are now the recognised leaders in reviewing performance criteria and service-delivery principles on behalf of our clients. Just one example was at the successful 2006 Asian Games, where we delivered waste, environmental and cleaning services for all competition and non-competition venues, including housekeeping at the athletes' village.

At the turn of the century, the Cleanevent Group established CleanDomain—a focused property-services company. By combining resources with Cleanevent International, we now provide property services, environmental management and consultancy services to leading property owners and managers globally. CleanDomain clients are in retail, large commercial and general property sectors, which form an important part of our international portfolio.

Our business model involves the understanding of our clients' needs, and achieving their desired outcomes, while providing our expertise of "know-how" project management for all contract and service requirements.

The actual final service delivery is delivered by our trained, qualified and professional employees, or local and international service providers with the relevant experience.

The Cleanevent Group is now recognised as the leader in delivering total event management, retail commercial and industrial property services around the globe, covering all areas of our core competencies and expertise: property services, waste and environmental management and event and property consultancy services.

Our key business message forms the basis of our business principles being: "The Cleanevent Group partners with our clients to deliver a high quality range of property waste-management and consultancy service solutions, with environmental sustainability in mind".

In order to deliver on our commitment to our clients we have invested considerable time and resources to obtain certification in the three key disciplines being; Quality Assurance, Occupational Health & Safety and Environmental Management. This further solidifies our leadership status and ensures consistency in the level of services delivered to our client base.

We realised that the Cleanevent Management system needed to be developed even further to cope with the growing and changing global business demands. Even more importantly, the need also arose to develop and implement Quality Assurance, Occupational Health and Safety and Environmental systems in order to keep pace with national and international standards.

Something that is not at all common in this industry.

To develop such standards in itself, was an extremely ambitious task that required detailed development of company policies, procedures and Safe Work Method Statements, enhanced by specific site and staff training to ensure full and total understanding of the new requirements and the benefits associated to having such systems operating within the group.

Well, the commitment and dedication to the task by the company to achieve this goal was rewarded on 4 Jul 08, whereby Cleanevent Australia Pty Ltd achieved formal certification by SAI Global in the following disciplines:

ISO 14001:2004 Environmental Management System

ISO 9001:2000 Quality Assurance Management System

AS/NZS 4801:2001 Occupational Health & Safety Management System (Australia)

OHSAS 18001:1999 Occupational Health & Safety Management System (International)

It is our intention to take the above systems, training and development processes to our global business in the near future, whilst naturally taking into consideration the differing legal frameworks of the respective countries. A daunting task yes, but definitely achievable.

We will continue to maintain our world status and set the standards for our industry.

"I am extremely proud on behalf of the Cleanevent Group and the Australia team to have achieved this result, it wasn't just a matter of achieving the certifications but they have added disciplines to our business that will not only benefit Cleanevent but more importantly our clients", said Robi Rogerson, Managing Director - Australia, New Zealand and South East Asia.

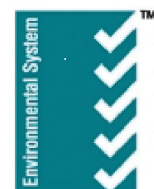

"Every day, we deliver the world's highest quality service with pride, passion and professionalism."

Quality
Endorsed Company

Occupational Health and Safety

Certified Environmental Management

It's the things you don't see that make all the difference